

LEGISLATIVE NOTES.

The Appellate Court Bill Indefinitely Postponed in the House.

Passage of the Bill Providing Money to Complete the New State House—Other Notes.

The Senate yesterday passed a bill appropriating $3,184.60 to reimburse the city of Indianapolis for money paid out in constructing the Female Reformatory sewer.

The House yesterday suspended the constitutional rule and passed the Senate bill fixing the time for holding court in the Twenty-fifth, Twenty-eighth and Forty-sixth Judicial Districts.

Hon. Thomas Hoban was a caller on the Democrat last night, and spent the evening with a party of friends in this office. Mr. Hoban has done all within his power to hasten legislation and bring about an early adjournment, but all in vain.—Shelby Democrat.

Senator Faulkner yesterday presented a petition signed by Mrs. James L. Benham, Mrs. Charles White and Mrs. Colop, praying the Senate to pass the bill requiring the teaching in the public schools of the effects of alcohol and narcotics upon the human system.

The Appellate Court bill was called up yesterday, on a motion to recommit to a special committee, with instructions to strike out two of the three courts therein provided for. The motion to recommit was laid on the table, and the further consideration of the bill indefinitely postponed.

The Governor signed two bills yesterday—an act to appropriate money to pay the expenses of the present session of the General Assembly, and directing the manner of its employment; and an act to amend Section 296 of an act entitled "An act concerning public offenses and their punishment."

It has been reported and published in the Journal that Representative Smith, of Warwick, was circulating a petition asking for a Trusteeship of the Soldiers' Orphans' Home. This is a mistake; Mr. Smith is asking that the Trustees appointed elect him Superintendent. Mr. Smith is every way an excellent gentleman; was four years a soldier, eight months in a rebel prison, and is now a minister and a man of many good qualities.—The Minute.

The House bill, requiring the effects of alcohol and narcotics upon the human system to be taught in the common schools of the State, came up on a second reading in the Senate yesterday. An amendment by Senator Foulke, that after September 1, 1885, physiology and hygiene shall be taught with special reference to the effects of alcoholic drinks, stimulants and narcotics on the human system, was adopted by a vote of 24 to 19, and the bill was ordered engrossed.

The bill to provide for raising money to complete the new State House came up in the House at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon, being the special order for that hour. Mr. Mock, of Wells, offered three amendments, all of which were adopted. The first made an appropriation of $350,000 for the work this year. The second provides for a temporary loan of $500,000 to anticipate the two-cent tax levy, and the third appropriates $10,000 to furnish the building when completed. The bill, which really became a new one when thus amended, then passed.

RAILWAY MATTERS.

Commissioner Fink Says Something Relative to the Trunk-Line Pool—Other Items.

The office of "train agent" on the Wabash has been abolished. So say conductors.

The Vandalla will run through trains between Lake Maxinkuckee and this city this summer.

It is quite probable that the L. B. and W. will put its ground south of the Vandalla depot to some use this summer.

The Bee-Line folks are making better time than ever before to Eastern points, and the result is a heavy passenger business.

The signal towers at the Belt crossing east of the city are doing good service, and have never been out of fix since they were put up.

H. R. Dering, General Passenger Agent of the Jeffersonville, Madison and Indianapolis Road, will return from his trip to the Sunny South the first of next week.

Some of the members of the St. Louis Pool, it is said, do not consider that institution broken up, and they still live in the hope of bringing the Vandalla back into their midst. It is not improbable that a readjustment of percentages will be made before long, and figures are being obtained from Commissioner Fink to prove how far wrong or right the Vandalls is in its demands.

Commissioner Fink, like many other prominent and sensible railroad men, is of the opinion that a breakage of the pool would not necessarily result in a demoralization of rates. He thinks that there is a disposition on the part of all roads to maintain rates, pool or no pool. The suspension of pooling, he says, would not interfere with the present organization of the Joint Executive Committee. The organization is a necessity entirely independent of pooling.

It is a medium for settling questions of all kinds arising among roads competing for and interchanging business. Instead of forty or fifty roads endeavoring to transact business with each other, which is almost an impossibility, they transact it through one office. This plan has been found so convenient and effective the roads will hardly resort to the old methods. Mr. Fink says there is no more danger of high tariffs. The danger is that they are too low.

THEY WALK THE PLANK.

The Adams Express Company Discharges Three of Its Employees.

The Adams Express Company of this city has just discharged three of its employees, John O'Hara, James Canada and John Polk, and this incident has revived interest in the matters connected with the disappearance of a $3,800 express package on the night of December 31. It will be remembered that O'Hara was kept under surveillance at the Denton House for two or three days, and then locked up in the station-house, he being the man who carried the package to the depot on the night of its disappearance. Two or three days later the missing package was found in the safe at the depot, and the theory would have obtained that it had been overlooked had not the safe been thoroughly searched some dozen or more times. When the package was found O'Hara was released and reinstated in his position as clerk, and the matter was thought to have dropped out of sight. An occasional rumor, however, was heard that the Express Company was by no means satisfied with the return of the package, and that a detective was still engaged upon the case. It is not known that anything was learned through this agency, or that the Company has had any grounds to suspect the parties, who have been discharged, with any criminality in connection with the temporary loss of the package. However, they no longer draw wages at the old station, when released from the station-house and reinstated in his position it is said that the Company agreed to give O'Hara constant employment in consideration that he would not sue for damages for false imprisonment. Canada was the clerk who found the package after it had been placed in the safe, and Polk was the porter.

AMUSEMENTS.

THE ABBOTT OPERA COMPANY.

This company gave their closing performance last night, producing "Semiramide," when the high-water mark of the short season of English opera was reached as regards scenic, dramatic and musical effect. Rossini, of all the Italian composers, befit himself not excepted, is the chief of world writers. No other rival is such luxury of beauty, nor "opus on the lace of glistening scales" with such a succession of surprises in melody. Miss Abbott was apparelled and jewelled in all the splendor belonging to a Babylonian court, wearing some very costly dresses, from the hands of a noted Parisian modiste. She sang the score and gave an impersonation with sufficient fidelity to rank her very high in the realm of vocalism. The timbre of her voice is a magical blending of soft tenderness. The beautiful "Belshazzar," and "The Opera of the first act was a brilliant effort, the embellishments and exquisite phrasing were marvellous of execution, and as much can be said of the duos of this and the succeeding acts. This opera is in fact a "duo opera," which, by rule of multiplication, ought to be twice as good as a "solo opera." Miss Abbott, who sings with great confidence, rendered the part of "Aïssa" in an artistic, refined and forcible way, although her voice is not fully adequate to the excessive demands of the score. Other parts were generally creditably taken. The chorists did splendid work, especially in the duos, the closing of the first act was a grand triumph, in all of which the large orchestra, under the direction of Sig. Tomasi, fully shared. The opera was luxuriously equipped, and much ingenuity was expended to please the spectators. The production of "Semiramide" reflected great credit on the enterprise of the brave little woman at the head of this organization, whose efforts have met with quite an ovation, and Indianapolis has seen after her the fullest measure of good will.

BARLOW & WILSON'S MINSTRELS TO-NIGHT.
To-night, at the Grand Opera House, the most popular minstrel organization in America, Barlow & Wilson's mammoth troupe, will give a special performance. No lover of minstrelsy should fail to embrace the only opportunity of the season to see this great combination of burnt-cork talent. The company has a National reputation, and includes all the best performers on the minstrel stage. The programme will be one of unusual strength. In the first part the ten comedians of this well-known troupe will appear. Their names are well known to theatergoers, and they have given a monster entertainment. Milt Barlow, George Wilson, E. M. Hall, Carl Rankin, Hughie Dougherty, Charles Goodyear, Billy Griffin, Ed. Marks, Harry Melton and Harry Crawford are a coterie of comedians seldom found in any one minstrel company. In the olio E. M. Hall, Ed. Marks and Harry Melton will give a "Pound of Aces," Hughie Dougherty, Carl Rankin, and Adams and Coker will appear. The amusing clowns, "The Sliding Ring," and a burlesque on Fanny Davenport's "Fedoras," will also be introduced. For an evening of enjoyment we advise you to go to the Grand Opera House and see Barlow & Wilson's Minstrels to-night. Popular prices rule, and the sale has already been very large.

THE RHYMA SEASON.
To-morrow night at the Grand Opera House the popular society star and emotional actress, Miss Althea, will open a brief season. Large and fashionable audiences attended all her performances, and her plays deal with the woes and pleasures, the pathos and comedy of the "upper ten." The opening bill will be Sardou's new comedy-drama, "Arcadia." The story deals chiefly with the complications which grow out of a young man, with the life of a baron who is older than the wife's sister is in love with the young man, and is beloved by him in return. The jealous husband suspects the worst, and his suspicions are at last confirmed when the supposed lover is found in the house; but he excuses his presence there, which was really for the purpose of saving his wife's honor, by confessing that this place is only a robe, the truth is at last discovered, and all ends happily. This portion of the story is told in three acts, and the play is a masterpiece of translation generally has been done in a creditable and effective manner. "Camille" will be given at the last of Althea's season, and "The American Countess" Saturday evening. The last play is by Mr. Howard Carroll, and is purely American in tone and color. Incidentally it might be said that the wardrobe and scenery in this piece is costly and superb, having been originally intended for the Queen of Holland.

"CINDERELLA" AT ENGLISH'S.
Good business seems to be the rule at English's this week. Low prices and a good show is no doubt the reason for it. The juveniles in their little buskings and operetta stunts, the audience with the case and grace they have in their little parts. Baby Clara, only five years old, is a paragon of beauty and intelligence. Never before has such a wonder appeared on the stage as actress Richard, only one year her senior, shares the honors that are so lavishly bestowed. The rest of the company are excellent. The wardrobe and scenery need be equal to any. The specialties introduced between acts are more than worth the low price of admission to witness. Next week the Amy Gordon Opera Company will be at English's all next week. McCull's Opera Company in "Folks" will be the attraction at the Grand the last two nights of next week. Mr. C. L. Durban, in advance of that charming little American artist, Minnie Madden, who returns to the Grand in "Caprice," on Wednesday and Thursday evenings next, is in the city. The Dime Museum was packed to overflowing against last night, and everybody was delighted with the show given. "Baby Venus" is the marvel of everybody. Saturday afternoon a children's grand English bonbon matinee will be given, with Colonel Cooper, the matinee, presiding.

AN ENJOYABLE AFFAIR.

Fifth Annual Meeting, Entertainment and Banquet of the Alumni of the Physio-Medical College of Indiana.

The fifth annual meeting and banquet of the Alumni of the Physio-Medical College of Indiana, was held in the College Hall on Indiana avenue last night. Besides the Alumni a large number of physicians and their wives were in attendance, and the occasion was an enjoyable one.

Before the entertainment began there was a business meeting of the society, with President B. F. Chiles in the chair. The minutes of the last meeting were read by Secretary Painter, after which partial reports were received from the Librarian and Treasurer. A set of very fine charts, the gift of Dr. Keith, was then presented to the society by Dr. Hasty, who, in making the presentation speech, dwelt particularly upon the good traits in the donor's character, and said that he had at all times endeavored to further the interests of the Physio-Medical Society. The speech was heartily applauded, and the society accepted the gift and tendered a vote of thanks to Dr. Keith. The following officers were then elected by acclamation:

Dr. C. N. Harold, Richmond, Ind., President.
Dr. N. D. Woodard, City, Secretary.
Laura B. Jennings, Bushy, Ill., Librarian.
Dr. S. M. White, City, Treasurer.

The graduating class then proceeded to elect W. T. Carmichael Vice President, and after transacting considerable unimportant business, the business meeting adjourned. The newly-elected President was escorted to the chair by two members, and made a very brief but happy address, thanking the society for the honor they had conferred upon him.

The entertainment began with a violin solo, piano accompaniment, by Miss Alma White, which was followed by a concertina solo by Dr. Robert Waldo. Dr. E. W. Ellis was to have delivered his annual address to the society, but owing to business engagements could not be present at the meeting. The remainder of the programme was as follows:

Piano Solo—Mrs. Florence Meek.
Violin Solo—Miss Alma White.
Trio Solo—Miss Alma White.
Trio Solo—Miss Alma White.
Piano Solo—Die Fretschütz—Sydney Smith.
Social. Miss May Miller.

Piano Accompanist—Miss May Miller.

Following the entertainment refreshments were served, and as everybody had good appetites the self-constituted waiters—members of the society—were kept very busy. The refreshments consisted of cake, coffee, chocolate, fruits, nuts, etc.

Building and Loan Associations.
The delegates from the various building and loan associations of the city to the number of about twenty-five, met yesterday evening and were addressed by Mr. Seidensticker on the subject of the loans affecting the institutions. He said the general bill before the Legislature had passed but the special bill is now pending. He said the present law is oppressive, because it discriminates against the associations, and in favor of the banks, and he was in favor of a better law. Mr. Frenzel thought the present law good enough. The only question is how the taxes shall be paid. If the assessors do their duty they will call upon the stockholders, and then assess them as reported. Albert Baker also took this view of the matter, after which Mr. Seidensticker again arose and defended his position. His speech was ordered printed, and a copy of it to be furnished each member of the Legislature.

The Scottish Rite Convocation.
Yesterday afternoon at the Scottish Rite Convocation Sarlah Council of Princes of Jerusalem, conferred the fifteenth and sixteenth degrees with the following working officers:

Grand Master—Charles W. Wright.
Deputy Grand Master—John B. Brown.
Grand Warden—Henry C. Adams.
Junior Grand Warden—Henry H. McGaffey.
Master of Ceremonies—T. T. Holliday.
Almoner—Charles F. Meyer.
Master of Entrances—Charles L. Hutchinson.

A large number of Ohio members arrived during the afternoon, also several from Michigan and Kentucky. Last night the Chapter of Rose Croix carried the work forward to the eighteenth degree, and there were several additions to the class of candidates. The annual banquet was a grand affair, and the musical programme excellent, including "Te Deum," "Gloria," "Holy, Holy, Holy," and several other chants.

Attempted Suicide.
Alice Long, colored, living in the Blackford Block, attempted suicide last night by taking morphine. She came near succeeding, but her heavy breathing aroused suspicion and Dr. Perry was called, who pumped her out and finally restored her to conscious sense. She is a single woman, and her attempt at self-destruction is said to be the result of a lover's quarrel.

Phil Thompson on His Defeat.
[Cleveland Leader.]

Phil Thompson was standing in the Riggs House last night talking to a group of friends about his defeat. A well built man, with a face as rosy as that of a milkmaid, and a complexion as clear as that of a baby, he has the most modest and most winning manners of any man in Washington. With bright black eyes and teeth like ivory in their whiteness, he talks in an unassuming manner, and has scores of friends. There is nothing of the braggadochio or bully about him, and strangers are surprised when they are told that this is the man who shot Davis, and who has in his thirty-three years killed several of his fellow-men. His defeat there did not seem to worry him any more than does the fact of his having killed Davis, and that means not at all. In speaking of it he said: "I have no doubt that Mr. Miller is a very fine gentleman and that he will make a good officer. I could see that it was not in my cards to win a week ago. You know they have been charging me with being the hired lobbyist of the whiskey men. Well, I thought I would go over and see Mr. Manning and tell him the truth about the matter. I called upon him and told him what I wanted; that I supposed he had seen the charges against me in the papers, and that I would like an interview to explain them. He told me he did not read the papers, but that he would be glad to see me and talk with me if I wished it. I could easily see that this was a polite way of telling me that he did not care to talk with me about my appointment. A short time after this I went to call upon the President with Mr. Carlisle, and while there I told Mr. Cleveland that I would like to have him accord me time for an interview. He put me off, and this convinced me that my day was over. It was within a few days of the time for appointing, and I very well knew if Mr. Cleveland and Mr. Manning wanted Mr. Thompson to be their Revenue Commissioner, they would want to have a talk with him. My friends still kept saying I was a drunkard, and I would not know the game was up, and that I had lost."

The Locomotive in Winter.
[Mechanical Engineer.]

A locomotive cab in winter is a dreary place. It is bad in daytime, but on a winter night, when the snow flies fast, the locomotive cab is a good place to keep out of. Even in the day it is impossible to see anything if a snow storm prevails. The rails run right up into the air. Nothing can be seen ahead but a jumbling of places. The windows are frozen up or covered with snow, and from innumerable cracks and crevices around the floor where it joins the boiler come draughts that bite and sting. The engine caws like a cow—haugh, hunch, now fast, now slow, and the smoke drifts over the track or uncovers it for a brief space, and when it strikes a drift it throws the snow in blinding clouds all over itself, just as the spray flies over a vessel shipping a sea. The track is rough, for the frost has disturbed it, and the engine lurches ahead, staggering to and fro like a drunken man.

There are few more impressive spectacles in this world than a powerful locomotive laboring through a heavy snow storm. To the observer beside the track it looms up through the gloom tremendous and awful. The locomotive seems the embodiment of the Death Angel, moving swiftly and noiselessly. The snow has muffled the whirr of the rolling friction of the wheels on the rails, and the train glides by like the unsubstantial pageant of a dream. With its black breath, its snorts of fire, its hoarse roars, it is truly a monster, the destroying angel, and the man must be unimpressive indeed who does not feel a thrill at its advent.

The Reason.
[South Reed Times.]

Some of our Republican friends seem to feel particularly acrimonious toward Vice President Hendricks. The reason for such feeling at first blush is hardly apparent. Those who know Mr. Hendricks personally have a special admiration for his character. He is at once able, learned, refined, polished, and the breath of scandal, dishonor, or dishonesty has never yet been able to cloud his good name. As Congressman, as Land Commissioner, as United States Senator, as Governor, he has been a credit to himself and an honor to the State. As Vice President he will acquit himself with equal distinction, as he has in every other position to which the State or Nation might call him. As a lawyer, a debater, an orator, too, he has few peers. It is observable, also, that quite a large majority of the people of the State recognize and appreciate these rare qualities of Mr. Hendricks, as his frequent reelections to office with a large and increasing vote abundantly attest. And herein, most likely, lies the sore and vindictive feeling of our Republican friends against him. He is a hard horse to whip. As the boys say, generally when he starts for it, he gets there. They know his strength, and would bound him down, and there lies the rub!
